

Tammy Hudgin – Creating Your Presence

Tammy Hudgin spent the last nine years working her direct sales business (no longer involved with direct sales as the company closed their doors) on Facebook and embraced all the elements that were available to her. One of the most valuable tools that she learned was that you need to sell yourself before you can sell your business. She launched her Facebook Social Media business over four years ago and has trained over 600 business owners on how to work Facebook to build a presence and get their business out there.

Tammy helps additional clients by managing their business pages and offering business page creation/revamp, along with consultations. Tammy has been a regular guest speaker for Rogers TV, spoken at Annual Conferences, Networking Meetings, nominated for 6 business awards, and has been interviewed on 2 radio blogs. She is currently writing for a variety of online websites/blogs with her thoughts on using Facebook for business. She embraces everything she learns from those she meets, she continues to be inspired by other business women and looks forward to building more relationships.
